Guidelines for Creating an Informed Consent Document

Creating a consent document for research participants is one part of the informed consent process. The primary purpose of the consent document is to provide information to prospective research participants to enable them to give “free and informed consent about participation.” Consent documents must conform to standards created for voluntariness and understandability. Some of these standards include, but are not limited to, using:

- Type size - no smaller than the type on this page (12 point)
- Headings, small paragraphs and spaces between the paragraphs
- Simple lay language (Grade 8 education; see Readability Statistics option in MS Word) - explain technical terms, acronyms and jargon as you would to someone in middle school.
- Single person and tense throughout the document (i.e., do not switch from 'you' to 'I' or refer to participant in third person).
- Page numbering format of: Page 1 of 3, Page 2 of 3, Page 3 of 3, etc.
- Only one document, the consent form, containing all information required by the participant. Do not use attachments or participant information forms.

The consent form submitted for review should be in its final form (as it will be seen by the participant), including:

- Letterhead of the primary research site and logos, if available, from any other institutions with shared responsibility.
- Corrected spelling and grammar
- Identifiers on the consent document (i.e., version date or number of the consent form)
- When you re-submit any changes to the consent form, whether changes are requested by the sponsor or by the REB, highlight all changes clearly.

On the following pages, you will find a tool to assist you in writing your own consent form. Examples of common items and headings have been included with acceptable versions of standard statements. Neither this, nor any other consent form template, should be blindly copied. The final responsibility for ensuring that the consent form is understandable and complete is yours, however please feel free to ask for advice or assistance by emailing, Chair, BCIT Research Ethics Board at research\_ethics@bcit.ca.

INVITATION

You are being invited to take part in a research study. Before you decide, it is important for you to understand why the research is being done and what it will involve. Ask us questions if there is anything that is not clear or if you would like more information.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE STUDY?

Your description should be written at a level of language and detail that someone with a Grade 8 education and no prior knowledge of your project could understand]*

WHAT IS THE [EXPERIMENTAL ITEM OR PROCEDURE] BEING TESTED?

[Indicate if the project involves a new or non-traditional procedure whose efficacy has not been proven in controlled studies]

WHY ARE YOU BEING INVITED?

Because you are... [Inclusion criteria here]

You should NOT take part in this study if you.... [Exclusion criteria here]

DO YOU HAVE TO TAKE PART?

WHAT ARE THE POSSIBLE DISADVANTAGES AND RISKS OF TAKING PART?

[Where the risks include emotional distress, provide contact information for counselling services]

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF TAKING PART?

Quote from Tri-Council Policy Statement:

“If there are no potential benefits to the prospective research participant, this must be stated explicitly. If there are potential benefits to the participant, these should be described as accurately as possible. This description should include relevant information about the nature of the potential benefit(s) (how important are these benefits?) and the probability of occurrence (how likely is it that the potential benefits will occur?)”

In research projects where there may be anticipated benefits to society or to a specific group within society (e.g., persons with a particular disorder, consumers interested in a particular product, children learning to read), these potential benefits must be explained in a separate paragraph so as not to confuse potential benefits to others with potential benefits to the research participant.
